'DREAM' PERFORMANCE BY RYDE YOUTH

Twelve aspiring young local performers – all aged between 13 and 16 – will present the Ryde Youth Theatre's inaugural season of DREAM DAY – a dramatic performance centred around the hopes and dreams of the world as they see it.

Dream Day questions destiny and our place in the world. It follows a fluid storyline observing a number of characters, each in a different situation, but connected by the central concept of unpredictability and the web that life weaves.

Script Supervisor and Director, Jon Wright, said: "When I presented my idea to the cast I was overwhelmed by their creative input and enthusiasm to really own this work and be full collaborators in all aspects of the production.

"Over the course of 14 weeks, we have developed the play so that it engages audiences of all ages as well as representing issues that are important to the performers' lives."
