Guidelines for Community Noticeboards

Community noticeboards at Ryde Libraries are reserved for local groups and organisations to promote cultural, community, educational and health events or programs.

Individuals, groups, and organisations need permission from library staff to display promotional materials.

Notices are typically displayed for a maximum of a fortnight.

We welcome notices related to:

- Not-for-profit organisations
- Services which benefit quality of life and contribute to community social improvement
- Self-help support groups
- Community events

Please note:

- Notices and handouts will be assessed by library staff to determine suitability. Space considerations will be taken into account
- The library reserves the right to refuse to display any materials. Material deemed to be offensive or discriminatory by staff will not be displayed
- Materials from community groups and organisations will only be displayed in the designated community information areas. These may not be available at all libraries
- Notices for events and programs must clearly display costs, location and other relevant information.
