GOOD BONES

I was honoured to attend the grand opening of Macquarie University Hospital's $30 million Orthopaedic Institute last week.

The institute has four theatres with robotic technology and 29 beds, with a model that combines pre-assessment and prehabilitation, enabling patients to return home sooner to complete their recovery.

It offers a comprehensive range of services, from hip and knee replacements to upper and lower limb reconstructions, with a choice of post-operative pathways for suitable patients.

This state-of-the-art facility is a further sign of Macquarie Park's standing as the state's pre-eminent Innovation District.

BLenheim PARK

The City of Ryde community is being invited to have their say over the concept design of a new skatepark which is part of the exciting Blenheim Park master plan.

These face-to-face sessions will give us a great chance to hear your thoughts on the skatepark's concept design, which was created following community input, and help shape the final design.

The design will be on display on Wednesday 28 February between 3.30 – 5.00pm at the North Ryde School of Arts.

AUTHOR'S PLATFORM

Writer and researcher Jessica Kirkness will be talking with fellow author Amy Lovat about her debut book The House with All The Lights On at Ryde Library on Tuesday 5 March between 6.20 – 7.30pm.

Jessica has traversed the boundary between deaf and hearing cultures all her life. Her memoir tells the story of her grandparents who grew up deaf in a hearing world – one where sign language was banned for much of the twentieth century – and weaves in her own experience as a hearing child in a family that often struggled to navigate their elders' difference.

This event will be Auslan interpreted and is wheelchair accessible. For more details and to register, go to:
